Next steps

- Board appointments
 - State Treasurer to chair
 - Comptroller and Governor's OMB office reps
 - Governor nominates 2 public reps with admin or investment experience plus one employer and one employee rep
 - Nominees must be approved by Treasurer and Senate
 - Deemed approved if no action in 60 days
- Board to:
 - Request opinion from DOL on ERISA coverage
 - No implementation if ERISA applies
 - RFP for provider

Potential Roadblocks

- Failure to obtain “adequate funds” to start the program (funds can be obtained from either public or private sources or both)
- DOL determines that the state program is an ERISA employee benefit plan.

ERISA Regs for Payroll Deduction IRAs

- Under ERISA regulations (2510.3-2(d)), payroll deduction IRAs are not subject to ERISA provided that:
 - No contributions are made by the employer
 - Participation is completely voluntary for employees
 - Employer does not “endorse” the program
 - Employer receives no consideration other than “reasonable compensation” for payroll deduction services

DOL Interpretive Bulletin 99-1

- DOL Interpretive Bulletin 99-1 provided more specific guidance for employers.
 - Reiterated that payroll deduction IRAs are not subject to ERISA if meet the criteria in 2510.3-2(d)
 - Defined what constitutes “endorsement”
 - Defined what constitutes “reasonable compensation”
 - Did not address automatic enrollment
- Key question: is automatically enrolling participants into a payroll deduction IRA program “completely voluntary”?
- Further concern: DOL completely ignored Interpretive Bulletin 99-1 in its myRA information letter.

DOL myRA Information Letter

- Sent to Treasury in December 2014
- Determined that the myRA program is not subject to ERISA solely because the program is administered by the federal government
 - Only reference to previous guidance is in a footnote.
- DOL’s view could have major implications for state retirement initiatives
- Worst case scenario - DOL could opine that state auto-IRA programs are not subject to ERISA but private auto-IRA programs usually are.

Illinois v California

California/IL Similarities

- Employers of a certain size must offer a workplace retirement savings plan
- Any qualified plan or payroll deduction IRA from any private sector vendor satisfies the requirement
- Default arrangement for employers with no plan is state-run auto-IRA
 - Employer can opt out of state-run plan at any time by adopting another (private) arrangement
- Website for employers to identify interested private providers
- State-run default not to be an ERISA plan

California/IL Differences

- California requires a study and legislative authorization to open the program
- Who is covered?
 - IL requirement applies to companies with 25 or more employees
 - CA is 5 or more
- State program investments
 - IL built on self-direction
 - target-date default with other investment options
 - CA has no self-direction; professionally managed with guaranteed rate of return (determined annually, in advance of the yr)
- CA legislation restricts providers eligible for provider website

Framework for Judging Proposals

- Employers of a certain size must offer some type of retirement savings program
- Any qualified plan or payroll deduction IRA from any private sector vendor must satisfy the requirement
- Any state option must be IRA-based
- Website for private-sector vendors must be included to level the playing field (if there is a state option)

Other Activity

- Oregon created a study commission that issued a final report last September
- Connecticut created a study commission that is ongoing
- Maryland failed to do anything legislatively
 - Commission created by exec. order disbanded by new governor
 - Report in the works

States with Private Sector Retirement Proposals (2014)

2015 additions (so far)

- North Dakota
 - State run plan for small business
 - No coverage expansion, just state competing with private providers
- New Hampshire (study)
